

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system that sequesters print advertisements within periodicals into an electronic format and provides the capability to display the electronic formats on electronic mediums. Further the system refreshes the electronic format when the advertisement's printed format is changed. This refreshing permits the system to provide a commonality between the printed and electronic format of the advertisements.